Dining In

Jennine Jacob's new venture, Mrs. Peasy, takes the fuss out of hosting with curated boxes of artisanal and vintage table settings that "balance luxury and informality," says the S.F.-based tastemaker, who honed her craft hosting events during New York Fashion Week for her organization Independent Fashion Bloggers. This fall, she introduces brass and wood elements as well as farm tables, benches and handwoven rugs to complete the ultimate Insta-worthy spreads. $25-$600; mrspeasy.com.

SOFT Touch

Friends Theresa Lee and Jennie Chen left their day jobs two years ago to begin their accessories label, Future Glory Co., with one premise: "to design products for women by women," says Lee. From their Dogpatch studio, the duo creates architectural leather bags fastened with gold ring handles, sophisticated moto backpacks and, next, a vibrant marbled leather collection. The locally crafted line supports women's charities and recently launched an apprenticeship program: "The bigger vision is to be able to train and provide jobs to marginalized women," says Lee. $125-$375; futureglory.co.

Toast Points

Artist Peter Blake's portrait of Michael Chow seated between wrestlers Frisco and Lorenzo Wong was originally commissioned for the restaurateur's London outpost in 1966. Today, the image has found renewed purpose on the label for Mr Chow's debut in-house wines (chardonnay and cabernet) in collaboration with Justin Vineyards & Winery.
